C. : The Office, 1997 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)38733347 Subject: Contracting out -- United States -- States. Excerpt: . . . B-271979 resources these activities consumed to achieve various levels of performance. Virginia introduced a comprehensive cost analysis method based on the federal governments A-76 program and the states contracting experiences to try to capture the complete costs associated with performing a service or function. Virginia reported that in fiscal year 1996 it was able to identify complete costs for 45 percent of the government activities identified as approach ABC privatization candidates. Since 1995, Virginia has piloted an in a number of agencies as a possible replacement for its existing analysis method. According to officials in Indianapolis and Virginia, obtaining more complete data was more time consuming but enhanced their governments ability to identify cost savings and evaluate bid proposals. Indianapolis officials told us they were able to obtain the information they ABC analyses from their current accounting system even needed to do though it did not provide cost data by activity. Officials used a system that took cost data ( e. g. , salaries, overhead ) associated with a function ( e. g. , street maintenance ) and assigned it for cost analysis purposes to activities ( e. g. , filling potholes, cleaning streets, repairing curbs ). The city was assisted in this exercise by a private-sector firm with cost-analysis expertise. Indianapolis and Virginia officials also said that working before privatization occurs with private firms with expertise in an activity slated for privatization was very beneficial in getting a better understanding of the cost and performance issues likely to be encountered during a privatization. For example, when Virginias Department of Corrections planned...
