A Tremendous Protest Today, more than 300 organizations, representing at least 90 per cent of the agricultural and commercial shippers of California, and a large number of similar organizations in Oregon, Nevada and Arizona, have banded themselves together under the leadership of statewide committees or otherwise, to preserve for the Western Slope its great unified trunk-line system reaching from Portland, Ore., to and below the Mexican border, without interruption in management or service. It is doubtful if any such outpouring of public sentiment ever has been witnessed under like circumstances, and it is hoped that you, too, will find it possible to lend your influence in making clear to the Interstate Commerce Commission at its approaching hearing on this subject, the real meaning of the public interest in this State and on the Pacific Coast, if you have not already done so. The Issue The question at issue very simple, despite many attempts, financed from outside, to make it appear otherwise. It is this: Do the people of California, Oregon, Nevada and Arizona believe they will be better off if the...
