These 10 cases constitute 13 per cent of the 75 mothers at home (7-2 at home plus 3 at work in mill and later at home). Comparing further the per cent of stillbirths traceable to sickness or ill health of the mother, there were 12 cases among mothers at work, constituting 22 per cent of the total for whom reports were received, and 20 cases among mothers at home, constituting 27 per cent of the total mothers at home. These comparisons would seem to indicate that so far as stillbirths were traceable to a cause the work of the mother in the mill and sickness or ill health of the mother so employed were not responsible for stillbirths in any greater degree among the mothers at work than among the mothers at home. It is necessary to point out, however, that the facts as presented here can hardly have an exact value, as the causes can not be known of a certainty in all these cases. Moreover, it is probably true that in a number of cases the reported sickness or ill health of the mother at home was due to former employment in the cotton mill, although it is necessary to say that no such case was identified among any of the mothers included in this table. Furthermore, sickness and ill health are not uncommon among women who are not employed in severe labor, either in the factory or in the home,...
